THE INTERIOR JOURNAL

E. C. WALTON

It is pretty safe to say that the days of hanging women in this country are over, no matter what crime they commit. The whole country revolted against the execution of Mrs. Surratt for her alleged connection with the assassination of Lincoln and a sentiment was crystallized against that mode of punishment for women that seems to grow with the days go by. In Vermont last week and in Pennsylvania Tuesday women who had murdered their husbands and who were under sentence of death for it, were reprieved by Governors who could not stand the measure. The Pennsylvania executive surrendered in the face of a petition with 270,000 names and granted a stay of proceedings, which means that the women will not suffer the death penalty. Hanging is a mighty poor way to put anybody to death, especially a woman, but as long as that penalty remains upon the statute books and women are held to be responsible beings, they should suffer the same as a man, when they commit crimes of a revolting nature.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT must be a very lovable man. Those who meet him nearly invariably change their minds with reference to him and go away "delighted" with his personality. Editor W. B. Haldeman, of the Louisville Times, recently called on him at Washington and since then he has been singing praise of him to his wisdom and his liberality of spirit.

W. L. CANNON, the clever but misguided old gentleman who failed for Congress in the Seventh District two years ago, seems to be a success as a tobacco producer if not as a republican politician. He has just sold 47,775 pounds of tobacco raised on 21 acres of his farm near Midway, at the average price of $1.15 per acre, or three times the value of the land.

FOUR Negroes in the Fayette county jail now await execution, while four white men have been hanged in that county within the last year or two. Disparities seem to be even in the capital of the blue grass, said to be the worst city in the United States with one exception—Norfolk, Va.

A CRANK, who wanted to tell the President how the government should be conducted, was restrained by secret service men, says a dispatch. He was a crank, sure enough, if he thought he could tell Teddy anything.

POLITICAL.

The Senate ordered a new canal bill drawn. Congressmen Bennett, of Greenup, has appointed his son to be his private secretary.

The governor of West Virginia asks the State Senate to investigate charges of hoodluming.

Judge J. A. Denton thinks his chances for reappointment as collector of this district are good.

The republicans of the Indiana Legislature agreed upon a new Senatorial apportionment bill.

The bill to credit Internal Revenue Collector Denton with $57,189.77 in the United States Treasury department passed both Houses.

The president has ordered James R. Garfield, of the Department of Corporations, to carry out the bill investigations called for by the House resolution.

Wholesale frauds by supporters of Peabody in the Colorado election have developed through evidence introduced by Gov. Adams in defending the contest instituted against him.

John Maynard Harlan was nominated unanimously by the republican convention in Chicago for mayor of that city. Mr. Harlan is a son of Justice Harlan, of the supreme court, and was born at Stanford in 1854.

At a conference of 25 of the staunch friends of Thomas K. Niedringhaus, held at Jefferson City it was decided to vote for Niedringhaus for Senator to the legislature. Those present at the conference declared that if he cannot be elected, no one else shall be.

HERE AND THERE.

Jay Cooke, the famous flautist, is dead.

A Columbus, Ind., child, who slept 147 hours, showed no ill effect on awaking.

The wife of James H. Howard is an applicant for the postoffice at Manchester.

Grayson county farmers quarreled, and Sam Miller's throat was cut from ear to ear.

Wible L. Manother, Jr., has been elected to the first vice presidency of the L. & N.

The roll of Hoch's wives continues to grow, and his operations extend to four countries.

Under the influence of the dealings of the Gates crowd, May wheat yesterday jumped to $1.21 1/2.

At Mt. Vernon Dr. M. Pennington and W. J. Rider fought in a room of the Newcomb Hotel. Several shots were fired, but no damage was done.

COL. AND MRS. W. HUFF DUDDERAR.

Who celebrated the 50th Anniversary of their Marriage in Royal Style Wednesday.

One of the very happiest occasions at which it has ever been our pleasure to be present was the golden wedding of Col. and Mrs. W. Huff Dudderar at their handsome "home on the hill" near Rowland, Wednesday. An hundred invitations had been issued; fully 75 of those fortunate enough to receive them responding, and from 11 until 3 o'clock the Dudderar home was a scene of joy and gladness. The happy bride and groom of 50 years ago were in perfect health and spirits, the children and grandchildren, delighted because of the long life of the good old couple, and the friends, glad to be in the happy home, all lent to make the day one long to be remembered. The home was beautifully decorated with smilax and other evergreens and an orchestra furnished the sweetest of music at intervals. The inner man was not forgotten either, for the large dining table, whorled on many friends have gathered in the years that Col. and Mrs. Dudderar have been husband and wife, was laden down with good things. An elegant dinner, the menu of which would take considerable space in this paper, was most excellently served, members of the family acting as waiters and seeing to it that all were abundantly cared for. An idea of this splendid repast may be had when it is told that there were over a dozen different kinds of cake—all as good as mortal man ever tasted. Some 30 or so guests were served at a time and at each table Rev. R. B. Mahony or Dr. L. B. Cook asked the Divine blessing. When the parting hour came Rev. Mahony, for Col. and Mrs. Dudderar, thanked the guests for their presence in a beautiful little talk which closed with an appropriate prayer. Each guest brought a present and one corner of the large parlor was filled, when the last arrival had handed his donation. Mrs. Ella Pollock, who was a bridesmaid at the marriage of Col. Dudderar and wife, was present and enjoyed the occasion greatly.

The marriage of these splendid people occurred near Hanks, Flat on Feb. 15, 1855, and Rev. William Newland, now dead and gone, officiated. Col. Dudderar remembers that snow covered the ground and the day was very much after the order of Wednesday—bright and cold.

Both Mr. Dudderar and wife were born in Lincoln county and they have lived within five or six miles of Rowland since. All during their married life they have lived within a mile of their present abode. Mrs. Dudderar was Miss Cynthia Farmer and is a fairer woman than her picture makes her. Both she and her husband are remarkably well preserved and the latter is as quick and active as some of his children. He does not use glasses, has all of his teeth, which are as sound as dollar, and would not know what to do with a walking cane.

In speaking of Mrs. Dudderar, Mrs. John Spoonamore, who is one of her closest neighbors, said to us as she pointed to her: "There is one of the very best women I ever knew. Truly she is the good Samaritan of this neighborhood."

A register of those present showed the following: Col. W. Huff Dudderar and "widow" Zia Dudderar and family, Louisville; Misses Chlois Murphy, Sallie Dudderar, Mrs. Bettie Hamilton, Ed L. Dudderar, wife and son, Birmingham; J. Fox Dudderar, Louisville;

San Craig Dudderar, William Murphy, Phil Soden, Louisville; Mrs. Iva Stuckey, Lexington; Will H. Sozen, Lexington; Harry Ellis Murphey, Madison; E. L. Pollock and Kate Napier, Maywood; B. Peddleton and wife, New James Nancy Ann Logan, Stanford; Sallie Gastineau and Nannie McWhorter, Lexington; Henry Traylor, Miss Mollie Daugherty, R. K. Gentry and family, John Z. Spoonamore and family, Thomas D. Haeny and family, Frank Cordier and family, Dr. and Mrs. Cook, S. B. Shanks, John Bright, Sr., E. P. Woods, Misses Sallie Smith, Rowland; Jessie Buckley, Henderson;—Ragland, Hattie Foster, Miss Tighe and Bertha Lang, Louisville; S. J. Emery and wife, James A. Dudderar and wife, Tinsley Spoonamore and wife, Miss Mary Mohler, L. A. Potter and wife, Rev. R. B. Mahony, Mrs. Leslie Harris, Madison county; Dr. J. K. Vande Ardale and wife, Mr. C. W. Hoffman and family, Mrs. Sam Schang and Thos. Sheerell, Louisville; Mrs. Thomas Lanley, Lexington.

The following poem was written by Phil Soden, a son-in-law, and dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Dudderar:

Just fifty years ago to-day,
Two hearts were made as one;
Huff and Cynthia, happy souls,
Their married life just begun
And they've been happy ever since,
As time has passed away,
And now we meet to celebrate
Their Golden Wedding day.

Their lives have been an endless joy,
As down its path they roam,
They've lived to love each other, too,
Within their happy home.
Their children brought them happiness,
And filled their lives with joy,
Sho'-'d-day just like a girl,
And he just like a boy.

Two' fifty years have come and gone,
They've known no sad regret,
They loved each other fond and true,
And love each other yet.
When Nature made him what he is,
She told the best of us
God made him happy when He gave
This model girl to Huff.

So let us trust and fondly hope
This faithful, loving pair
May live for years as they have lived,
And never have a care
And when they have come to rest,
Their bodies' souls the soul,
May they be reunited then
In heaven and with God.

May they go on thro' life for years,
And be happy all their lives,
He be the happiest of men
And she the best of wives
And when they kneel at heaven's gate
Their golden crowns to win,
May God be glad to smile and say:
"Let Huff and Cynthia in!"

So Huff and Cynthia enjoy your wedding day,
Life's pleasures gladly flow,
And you be happy as you were
Just fifty years ago
The angels will look down and smile,
And bless you every day,
Just as we do to celebrate
Your Golden Wedding Day.

At night many young people gathered by invitation at the Dudderar home, where several hours were spent most delightfully.

TEMPER PRESERVING HAIR BRUSHES.

A hair brush is a long-lived article. Things that last should be bought right. A hair brush is one of the little things that add to or detract from daily comfort. A poor one won't penetrate the hair and is a perpetual nuisance.

You can't get a poor one here, no matter how little you pay, and for 50 cents and upwards you can get the kinds that last a score of years and are a satisfaction while they last.

See Our Window.

Nothing Too Complicated

We pay Especial Attention to Watch, Clock and Jewelry Repairing.

Your watch or clock running without oil, is like any other kind of machinery—will wear itself out by friction of one part upon another when the oil becomes dry. It's poor economy to neglect to have this done. All repairing promptly attended to. Call for your work—it's ready!

Have your Eyes examined and Glasses properly fitted.
